Correspondence

To the Editor,

The article “Pure cortical supratentorial extra-ventricular ependymoma” by Yadav et al.,[1] was interesting. However, the trend of ignoring Indian references continues, as the authors state that so far only five such cases have been reported in world literature. I would like to point out a similar case reported earlier.[2] Authors must cite relevant Indian references wherever possible, especially ones that have been published in indexed journals with high impact factor.

Harjinder S. Bhatoe

Department of Neurosurgery, Command Hospital (SC) and Armed Forces Medical College, Pune - 411 040, Maharashtra, India.
E-mail: Hsbhatoe@gmail.com

References

Accepted on 10-08-2009.